

UNDERSTANDING LEARNING STYLES & DIFFERENCES

Matching:

Multiple Intelligences and Learning Styles

Draw a line from the learning style or type of intelligence on the right to its description on the left.

Linguistic	Ability to produce and appreciate music; thinks in sounds, rhythms and patterns; responds to music either by appreciating or criticizing what they hear; may be extremely sensitive and aware of environmental sounds
Logical/Mathematical	Learns best by listening
Visual/Spatial	Ability to relate to and understand others; sees things from other people's point of view in order to understand how they think and feel; uncanny ability to sense feelings, intentions and motivations; great organizers; tries to maintain peace in group settings and encourages cooperation
Musical/Rhythmic	Ability to use words and language; highly developed auditory skills; generally eloquent speakers; think in words
Bodily/Kinesthetic	Learns best when seeing the relationships between objects/items
Interpersonal	Ability to use reason, logic and numbers; thinks conceptually in logical and numerical patterns making connections between pieces of information; asks lots of questions and likes to do experiments
Intrapersonal	Ability to identify and classify the components that make up our environment; sensing patterns in and making connections to elements in nature; very interested in other species in the environment and the earth; has a strong affinity to the outside world or to animals; keenly aware of their surroundings and changes in their environment
Auditory	Ability to perceive the visual; tend to think in pictures; creates vivid mental images to retain information
Naturalist	Learns best when moving or doing something physical with the information
Visual	Ability to control body movements and handle objects skillfully; ability to express themselves through movement; has a good sense of balance and eye-hand co-ordination; ability to remember and process information through interacting with the space around them
Tactile/Kinesthetic	Ability to self-reflect and be aware of one's inner state of being; understands their inner feelings, dreams, relationships with others, and strengths and weaknesses