The Importance of Understanding Disabilities and Learning Styles

Having a disability does not mean that a person is dumb or cannot do things; it just means that they may need to find a different way to do a task. If you have a disability, it is important to understand it and how it affects your life. Knowing what your best learning style is will help you be successful in school. When you understand how you learn best you are then able to approach a teacher in a positive and non-threatening way to ask for a modification or assistance with a lesson. People with disabilities have many successful careers. Students who understand their disabilities will be able to set positive goals for themselves and develop ways to achieve them.
